others were seeking us for not granting at once and without enquiry all the Secretary of the Treasury asked us, and complaining of a deficiency of force in the New York custom-house, I saw about this capital, in the lobbies and corridors of the two houses, and probably visiting those very vehicles, one of the employees of that custom-house.

Mr. Johnston delivered a patriotic and eloquent speech that day. He came down upon the fanatics of the North and the South with a vengeance—came out boldly against the proposed Southern Convention—declared that only for Southern States to secede would be a relief to the Union, and that she had shifted its getting up on—other shoulders, because the people had not forgotten her old millinery scheme—a—

The last day of the session, that is, the 20th, when the Union was dissolved, he trusted that its ruins might be the monument of his grave. He desired no epitaph to that which had survived the wreck of the Republic.

The ladies of the Union were here to hear the "Speech of San Jacinto," and of course they were allowed to enter in the Senate Chamber.

GEN. LANE.—We have politely shown a letter from Gen. Lane to his lady, dated Oregon City on the 21st Sept. last. It contained very little matter relating to public affairs, of course. The principal item of public importance in it, is a request that his family should hold themselves in readiness to leave here for Oregon in the fall, as much time as his son, (who was in Oregon) the time he had spent here, would be here to company the family to a point designated where the General himself would meet them.

In view of the position of Gen. Lane before the public, we question very much whether, under the circumstances, he will leave. He is in the hands of the people, and he is a man who will do anything to stand for him as candidate for the Presidency in 1852. The recent movement at the State capital and other unmistakable demonstrations of public opinion in his favor, when presented in a proper light before him, will no doubt induce him to swerve from his purpose of emigrating to the wilds of Oregon. the people legitimately say he must do. Evening Journal, Jan. 21.

RECEIPTS OF BENEVOLENT SOCIETIES.—The receipts of some of the leading religious and benevolent institutions during last December, are annexed. The statistics will be found liberal, and in most cases in advance of last year, a fact every way gratifying to reflecting minds, and equally honourable to our country. The receipts for December were as follows:—

American Bible Society	$53,750
American Tract Society (including publications sold)	26,640
American Board of Commissioners for Foreign Missions	20,600
Presbyterian Board of Foreign Missions	8,600
American Home Missionary Society	6,400
Presbyterian Board of Domestic Missions	5,500
Sunday School Union (not including publications sold, November.)	3,600
Episcopal Board of Domestic Missions, from Dec. 31st, 1854, to Dec. 31st, 1855	8,200
Do. do. Foreign Missions, do. do.	2,200

The American Bible society, during the first six months of the biblical year which here just passed, received $192,627. New York contributed $97,000, and Massachusetts over $19,000.

The American Board received between August and Dec. 31st., a period of five months, $91,500. The larger portion of these funds were collected in New England States.—N. Y. Com. of Commerce.

ANOTHER WONDER OF CALIFORNIA.—A letter from Major Embury, dated at Camp Riley, south of San Diego, August 20, says a river forty feet wide and three or four feet deep, has appeared in the desert between the mouth of the Gila and the mountains. There was no river there in 1846, and the water abruptly broke out between June 20 and July 1. It runs a little east of north. A fine fresh water lake was also formed in that region, from the back water of the Colorado. Major Embury thinks the source of water in the desert "must soon be followed by the growth of grass; and, if the river continues, the route by the Gila, now much travelled, will stand fair to rival all overland routes to California. It is probably the only route within the limits of the United States that can be passed in winter, and the one upon which will concentrate the winter travel to the Pacific."—

COMPOUSE UNDER GUILT.—The friends of Mr. Webster urge that he could not have exhibited the composure he did, after the crime of murder had been committed, if he had been guilty of it, as it is known that he sat down on the same night, and deliberately wrote a letter to a certain friend, in which it is recorded the Countess of Somerset, that she danced a measure with a nobleman, just after she had committed murder, and that she was all gay and frolic, although she had just done a deed which when it was discovered, filled mankind with horror. She and her husband were put to their trial for the murder of Sir Thomas Omerby. The Earl was convicted. The Countess plaid guilty.

✂ Hon. Henry A. Wise recently made a speech in Richmond, Virginia, before the Historical Society of the State of which he undertook to account the difference between the people of Virginia and New England. He said that a school of Metaphysics had been transplanted from Oxford to Williamsburg while a school of Physics was carried to Boston by Cambridge. He asserted that Virginia was still dealing with Oxford abstractions, while New England was dealing with Boston facts. He said that he thought that Virginia has very little cause to boast, that its present history is remarkable for its barrenness, and that there exists a necessity why its condition should be advanced.

A correspondent of the N. Y. Journal of Commerce says:

The want of physical training of youth is one of the greatest errors of education in America, principally among young ladies; not only because the want of health and strength, is, according to Horace Mann, a dead loss to the community, but yet because a "tempered" body is the most miserable companion in life. The "untempered" body, in scientific morals, have been left unfinished, or unattended, the reason of the slow decay, or the sudden extinction of health!

There was a little debate in the House of Representatives in Congress on printing a report of the Secretary of the Treasury. Some of the members wanted a large edition printed in a cheap form to go out to the people; others wanted it bound in substantial binding. It is really to be hoped that the representatives of this great nation will not continue to belittle it by such a stream of miserably printed pamphlets as come to the people. If a document worth printing at all it is worth printing well, and at such wretched paper and in such a wretched manner as too many of the national documents are printed. They are a disgrace to the nation. One of the members stated that it was notorious that a considerable portion of the documents printed found their way into the grocery stores for wrapping paper. This is all some of them are fit for.—Boston Post.

(?) A correspondent of the Evening Post, writing from Philadelphia says:—

"I learn from Washington city, that James Buchanan has withdrawn his letter, addressed to Honorable James X. McLaughlin, on the subject now agitating the nation—slavery—and that he does not intend to give it publicity. His motives are to be ascribed to the fact that he is not prepared to reach the conclusion to which his Berks county letter of the 10th inst. has led him, and that he is not strong enough for the present.

Clingman of N. C. (Whig) has been making a speech in the House, which the Atlas styles "the longest in Clingman's life." But in the passage of the Wilmot Proviso, from time to time, in this House slave-holders would have gone to California, to the mines, and made that a slave State." So it appears that California is indebted for her Free Institutions to that anti-slavery agitation which the President says is "undue" and "unnecessary."—Los Angeles American.

DEATH OF COMMODORE DANIEL TURNER.—We regret to hear that Com. Daniel Turner, of the U. S. Navy, died suddenly in this city, on Monday night. He just arrived, with his wife and daughter, from New mouth, N. H., and intended passing the winter here when he was struck down, as is supposed, by an attack of the heart. He was one of the oldest officers in the Navy.—Pa. Ledger.

TORTURE IN SWITZERLAND.—A strange circumstance has just taken place at Herisau, the capital of Appenzel, in Switzerland, showing the mode in these countries of old liberties, civilization is behindland in some matters. A young girl of nineteen some months back, assassinated her rival. Her lover was arrested with her, and, as she accused him of crime, both were put to the torture. The girl yielded to the pain, and confessed her crime; the young man held firm in his denial; the former was condemned to death, and on the 7th of this month was decapitated by the guillotine, the place of Herisau. The fact is itself, a startling one, but the details are just as strange. For two hours the woman was able to struggle against four individuals charged with the execution. After the first hour, the strength of the woman was still so great that the men were obliged to desist; the authorities were then consulted, but they declared that justice ought to follow its course. The struggle then recommenced, with great intensity, until she despaired to have reduced the woman faint. At the end of another hour, she was at length bound by the hair to the stake, and the sword of the executioner then carried the sentence into effect.

CURIOUS PUNISHMENT IN ENGLAND FOR CONJUGAL INFIDELITY.—A few days ago the inhabitants of Basingstoke, Hampshire, were amused by the town crier proclaiming the following:—

"Mr. John Kay is going to burn Mrs. Kay's cloths upon the Demesnes Hill, and he invites Mr. Hooper to the fire, which is now kindling."

The crier commenced at Mr. Hooper's door, and, being the dinner hour, he was followed by a large concourse of people. They proceeded to the Demesnes field near the town, upon a hill; a very large fire was kindled, and Mr. Kay (who was a stout and intemperate in the town), upon which he laid all the valuable wearing apparel and articles of his wife, which consisted of her satin and silk dresses, including nearly the whole of her bridal garments, muslins, dresses, shawls, victorines, bonnets, veils, caps, arm bands, pendants, a pair of beautiful shoes, a pair of gloves, a ring, a fine silk cloak, a quantity of bed linen, a pin-cushion, with the inscription "welcome little stranger," upon it, and a great many more cloths of every description. These clothes were considered to be worth at least £50. It is supposed that Mr. Kay's reason for doing this was conjugal infidelity on the part of his wife. In the evening of the same day the Countess married the Hooper with an immense wedding, was burnt in front of Mr. Hooper's house in Gallowgate street.

The immediate family of Queen Victoria, consisting of the Prince of Wales, Prince Albert, and Prince Ernest Albert, and four Princesses, the oldest of whom is nearly a year older than the Prince of Wales. The Queen has, therefore, what in primitive life would be called a fast growing family, but does not compare numbers with that of her royal grand-mother, when at her present age, 80 or 90 years old, had six sons and three daughters, to whom were added within the four succeeding years, two more. These twelve children of King George III, and Queen Charlotte, all of whom lived to mature years. Queen Victoria is the sole descendant, with the exception of three or four children of her youngest uncle, who still living.

LAMARTINE IN TURKEY.—A French Journal gives some particulars of the estate recently bestowed on the Sultan on M. de Lamartine. The domain lies the immediate vicinity of Smyrna, and is nearly as large as the Isle of Wight, being about fifty-four miles in circumference. It has hitherto belonged only to the crown, as we should say in England. The soil is in the main wonderfully fertile, like most of the land in the neighbourhood of Smyrna, as being well planted with oranges and olives, and as capable of every variety of cultivation. The chateau, built for the residence of an imperial officer, is commodious beyond the usual run of Turkish houses; and under the windows lies a fine lake of more than a mile across, which is described as well stocked with fish. The estate includes five villages. M. de Lamartine, it is said, goes to Asia Minor in the spring, to take possession of his domain.

The English Consul at Vienna has discovered a seditious attempt instituted by Austria to murder King Louis, and to assassinate the Emperor of Austria, and her husband, who having escaped from Hungary the disguise of a mendicant.

The London correspondent of the National Enquirer says that Miss Bronte, the author of "Jane Eyre" and "Shirley," is the survivor of three sisters, Charlotte, Emily, and Anne, who have each been the public under the assumed name of Bell. Anne as Acton Bell. Emily published a volume of poems, under her assumed name of Ellis Bell. Anne wrote "Wildfire Hall," as Acton Bell. And Anne and both died of consumption.

THE ENGLISH CHALLENGER.—It is interesting to the public to learn the end of a war which at one time was a literary war in London—a whose power as a writer and as an artist, whose profound scientific acquisitions and amusing qualities in society made him the centre of a brilliant circle. The night of the 17th of January, 1891, the night of the crime, is too well known to need recapitulation. Suffice it, that there is too much reason to believe it he poisoned several persons with the view of defrauding insurance offices, and that his criminal career terminated in transportation for forgery. To the last he greatly had been esteemed in private society. He was a man of great intelligence, and his knowledge of the damning evidence against him, and refused to believe one they had so highly estimated a debauched, darkly-plotted miscreant. It is well known that Mr. Proctor (Barry Cornwall) was his friend to the last, and petitioned the Home Secretary to allow the convicted forger certain liberties on his way to a penal colony. Mr. Proctor mentions Wainwright as "the light-hearted Janus," alluding to the nom de guerre (Jack Weathercock) under which Wainwright published his light effusions. I have just heard from a gentleman who has lately returned from New South Wales certain particulars of this celebrated convict, because altered by the convict law, but his informant told me, that it was difficult to conceive of a higher sphere of life than he held as a ticket-leave man in Sidney. He might be seen there on Saturday night, with a coarse market basket in hand, purchasing his food among the very poorest. He made a living by taking portraits, and at intervals exhibited in the local exhibition, but his talents were not enough to raise him above the level of the commonest customers, did raise him in the social scale. He was still the convict; still the criminal to be shunned and scorned. He died in the hospital, and the surgeon who attended him in his last moments said that the wretched man's death-bed was one of the most appalling scenes he had ever witnessed. He was covered with sores, and his emaciated body altered the most blasphemous simile, and died in a paroxysm of remorse and fear.—London Correspondent of the Manchester Examiner.—[This is a man that Bulwer has so graphically portrayed as "Lucretia, or the Children of Night."

(57) The following beautiful lines are no less worthy of the fair lady who offers them than she who they are dedicated:

To Mrs. A. L. Ruter Dufour.

BY MRS. SARAH T. BOLTON.

Dearest lady, as thou art,
Gentle, talented and true,
I have chanted thee in my breast,
With a priceless treasure there.
Could I have a soul like thine—
On life's pathway by my side—
Never would my heart be sad,
For a more angelic guide.

Oftt we meet with worth and mind,
In the circles where we move,
But in long, long years we find
Few, how very few to love,
Y. t. without this belished few,
Life would be a desert lone,
Where no sparkling dew we see,
Where no cheering sunbeam shone.

With the darling little band,
Whose warm spirits dwell with mine,
In love's radiant Eden land,
I have dar'd to number thine.
'Tis not long since first we met,
And we only met to part,
But no measured time is set,
For the offerings of the heart.

Quick as thought, a look, a sigh,
Or a whisper, kind and true,
Binds the spirit with a tie,
That long years may not undo,
Fancy brings thee to me now,
With thine eyes to guide and bright;
With thy pure transparent brow,
Radiant with the spirit's light.

But, alas! when I essay
To embrace the vision fair,
Silently it fades away
And I clasp the empty air—
Clasp the empty air and hear,
In the silence of my heart,
Memory whispering sweet and clear,
That our homes are far apart.

HORRIBLE MURDER IN ILLINOIS.—On the 5th inst. a horrible murder was committed at Dollston prairie, Clark county, Illinois: The Marshall Democrat gives the particulars, from which we gather that John Knight sold to his brother Joseph Knight, a wagon, for which he was to dig him 100 dollars. The work on the wagon was not so well as was partially performed, and then alongside John then sued and recovered judgment. On Friday Joseph went to his brother's house, and made an attempt to take his life, with a long knife, but failed, and then told him that, unless he gave him a receipt against his judgment by the next morning at 8 o'clock, he would shoot him. Joseph, however, did not agree to his brother's demand, and then he threatened to take him. John returned home, and loaded his gun, as he said, for the purpose of defending himself, should Joseph attempt to carry out his threat. Next morning, soon after breakfast, the children announced that Joseph was approaching with his gun. John took down his gun, and stepped out of the door, and with a long knife, as he said, he told him not to approach nearer, or he would shoot him. Joseph, without making any response, drew an axe from his brother through the heart. Wm. Knight, another brother, barely escaped with his life. Joseph then loaded his gun, and started home. On his way, he told a neighbor what he had done, and requested he BRUTAL AFFAIR.—An affair of the most shocking nature we have ever been called upon to notice, happened in Atlanta, Ga., a few days since. It appeared that some difficulty had existed between Mr. Fannin and his son-in-law, Mr. Goffrey, in relation to colored slaves, and that the father, Mr. F., had been forbidden access to the house of his son-in-law. During the fore part of week before last, however, he attempted to gain an entrance into the house, and being opposed, a fight ensued between himself and son-in-law, when the wife of Mr. G., in endeavoring to quiet the parties, received a stab in the abdomen, from a knife in the hands of her father. She was at the time eight months advanced in pregnancy. She died from the effects of the wound about two days after it was inflicted.

DEATH OF AN EMINENT MEXICAN.—Pana y Peña was president of the Republic of Mexico, and at the close of the war with the United States, is dead. He was under his own hand the author of peace made, and it was by him that was ratified, after Herrera the President elect, fearing popular indignation at the cabals of the Santanist, abnounced the responsibility of advocating or signing it, and obtained the election of Pana y Peña as President, ad interim. Congress, however, considered one of the ablest and best men in Mexico.

The public debt of Kentucky, on the 10th of July 1862, exclusive of school treasury, was $4,460,152. The greater part bears an interest of six per cent.

to preserve corpses from decay for any length of time without the aid of artificial means. The machine is so constructed that it will keep the body cool and moist, thus preventing decay, and preserving the features as they were at death. The use of such a machine cannot be substituted by those who desire to retain the remains of their loved ones until the funeral services are held, or those who wish to have the bodies of their friends lie in state among those who have been compelled to use it on account of the fast decaying of their friends, a general and pleasing satisfaction has been given; for none can speak too highly of such an invention. It is especially useful in institutions where the bodies of persons who desire to delay funerals until the arrival of distant relatives are preserved, or to make suitable preparation for interment, can, by use of this machine, preserve them for weeks in a perfectly indestructible state, allowing all to gaze upon them.

NOTICE TO STOCKHOLDERS.

THE Board at its session, last week, having resolved to give the Company, on subscription, to pay the installment due, and the balance of the subscription, as soon as possible, enable the Board to procure the work in view. Our subscription is now $600,000.00. We are a large minority, which is fine, and will become even larger if the balance of the subscription, which will do so, can be enabled to be enabled the whole thing. We hope our subscribers will be so interested in the work, to take stock in the Company, which we think must prove a good investment, and enable us to operate at the earliest possible day. We invite the public, who are interested in the work, to take stock in the Company, which we think must prove a good investment, and enable us to operate at the earliest possible day.
